

Recommendation Letter

“Bob was one of the most energetic and curious web development students I've taught at General Assembly. He was always early to class and sitting up front, excited and ready to absorb whatever lesson we had that day. His thirst for knowledge was always evident in his class participation and the quality and detail in his questions. He is also relentless in his attempts to master new content; Bob would simply not stop until he had wrestled whatever language, framework or library we were working with into submission and gotten it to work how he intended. His unique ability to focus despite numerous distractions and continue working for hours on end is a testament to his concentration and passion for his craft. I feel supremely confident saying that Bob will have a long and productive career as a programmer, and any company would be lucky to have him.”

- Sean Shannon

Sean Shannon was the lead instructor for Web Development Immersive at General Assembly.

He wrote this recommendation for Robert Weilbaecher on Linked In, which you can view here: linkedin.com/in/bobweilbaecher